The Performers

Chris Roach is a Comedian/Actor born and raised in New York. He has brought his unique and self-deprecating sense of humor to some of the biggest and best-known stages in the country, such as Gotham Comedy Club, Comic Strip Live NYC, The Borgata in Atlantic City and The Paramount in Huntington, NY. He recently toured as the opening act on Kevin James' 2019 tour all across the country.

He is best known for his major recurring role of Mott in the hit CBS sitcom "Kevin Can Wait" and has also appeared in numerous other episodics, both comedies and dramas. He also created the viral video ode to his beloved hometown "Ronkokomo" which has nearly two million views across all platforms.

He currently co-hosts two weekly podcasts – the popular new Long Island Explained podcast, which focuses exclusively on historical and pop culture events from his native Long Island, and The Chris Roach Show.

The Performers

Dennis Rooney started doing stand up somewhere between January and April of 2010, it's all a bit of a haze, like many of his "first time" experiences (ahem). The first two years of his career were spent pounding the pavement between NYC and his home, Long Island, doing countless open mics before ever stepping foot into a comedy club. This foundation of hard work has been thematic to his comedy career. He loves stand up, and it is important to him to do good work, even in the face of harsh tasks, like writing his own bio.

Since starting he has become a regular at the Governor's comedy clubs on Long Island. He's performed at the Asheville and Cleveland Comedy Festivals as well as independent shows throughout the country. A burgeoning college performer as well, Dennis enjoys doing any and all shows; the weirder the gig the better. He has done it all on the spectrum – from a squeaky clean bat mitzvah show in a modern Orthodox synagogue with no electricity to opening for national headliners in large theaters, Dennis loves the challenge and always delivers. He has been self described as a blue collar absurdist armed to the teeth with sharp jokes.
